Approaching our climate future with courage & activism

Are you feeling anxious and overwhelmed by the climate emergency? Our March meeting will acknowledge and validate the collective psychological and emotional needs of individuals who want to act but are struggling to find their path in the face of climate denialism, misinformation and inaction.

Let's face the climate crisis together by processing our feelings with compassion and understanding. We will explore "good news" stories to boost our sense of hope and commitment.

	Center for Countering Digital Hate (CCDH) CCDH's groundbreaking AI-powered research shows that New Climate Denial narratives that aim to undermine the climate movement, science and solutions, now constitute 70% of climate denial content on YouTube in 2023. In the introduction to the report from the Center for Countering Digital Hate US/UK, founder and CEO Imran Ahmed makes the case that it's a new kind of climate denialism that is spreading so quickly on social platforms. Why? Not only is it due to the lack of content moderation from Big Tech companies and a willingness of cynical media personalities on these platforms to take up the denier mantle, but also an economic incentive structure for content creators that supports misinformation. Read The New Climate Denial

Podcasts worth listening to

	Why Is “New Climate Denial” so popular on social media – February 14/24 Imran Ahmed joins the Climate Pod to discuss The New Climate Denial: How social media platforms and content producers profit by spreading new forms of climate denial? and how social media platforms and legislators can help stop the dominance of misinformation online and what could happen if we don't. LISTEN
	State of climate progress with John Stackhouse — February 9/24 In this podcast, David Herle, back-room strategist and pollster, talks to John Stackhouse one of Canada's leading voices on innovation and economic disruption. Stackhouse is a former Editor-in-Chief of the Globe & Mail, a senior fellow at the CD Howe Institute and the Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy. He is currently a Senior VP, Office of the CEO at the Royal Bank. He and his team at the bank have just published a new report on the state of Canada's climate progress: "Climate Action 2024 – Double or Trouble." LISTEN
	“Climate Capitalism” – interview with Akshat Rathi of Bloomberg – February 18/24 Markham Hislop interviews Dr. Akshat Rathi on his new book, “Climate Capitalism”. Akshat is a London-based senior reporter for Bloomberg News. The book is about “how we tackle climate change within the world's dominant economic system and ensure that the wheels of progress don't come to a halt or, worse, go into reverse.” LISTEN
	Navigating climate emotions with Dr. Britt Wray – February 26/24 Dr. Britt Wray is a science communicator and the author of two books. Her latest is Generation Dread: Finding Purpose in an Age of Climate Anxiety. The book was a finalist for the Governor General's Literary Award and one of CBC's best Canadian nonfiction books of 2022. Reviewers called the book an impassioned, informed perspective on eco-anxiety and staying sane amid climate disruption. LISTEN
	Canada's National Observer introduces a new investigative podcast series: The Poison Detectives In episode 1, a firefighter's wife and a corporate lawyer in different parts of the US get pulled into solving separate mysteries. Something was making cows die and deer hemorrhage to death in West Virginia. That same something could also be giving firefighters cancer – all over the country. LISTEN
